

Privacy Policy Statement The Absent Parent

The Absent Parent web site is for sharing information with parents that have been affected by Parental Alienation Syndrome. The web site is also dedicated to reducing the mental abuse of PAS that is forced on children. At the current time, this web site does not collect personal information from parents or parties that visit the Absent Parent web site.

This web site does not collect information on persons or parties who browse our Web page. With respect to cookies, this web site does not set any cookies. The administrator of this web site can be reached via our guest book sign-in page. For each visitor to our Web page, our Web server does not automatically recognize information regarding the domain or e-mail address.

The administrator of this web site will not contact visitors of the web site unless it is in direct response to a question posted by the visitor.

Any information that is gathered by from the guest sign-in book will be maintained in privacy. There will not be any shared information to outside agencies, solicitors or companies that would create mailing lists. With respect to Ad Servers, this web site does not partner with or have special relationships with any ad server companies.

With respect to security, the privacy and security of each visitor is considered an important issue. Many points shared could or may lead to the compromise of a child's identity or jeopardize a parent's court case. This web site hopes to enhance the care of children who are affected by Parental Alienation Syndrome. Any information that could reveal the identity of a specific child will be edited from the material presented.

If you believe this web site is not following the stated information policy, you may contact the administrator through a link set up through the guest sign-in page.

Signed,
Administrator of The Absent Parent Web Site